Conference Focus

- Showcase state-level data, information, and reports concerning the health of Wisconsin's population as measured by health status, health disparities, and environmental health indicators.
- Set targets without traditional data: use nontraditional data sources to supplement gaps in state and federal data to describe health and health threats in Wisconsin communities.
- Learn about progress to transform our public health system and findings on its capacity and infrastructure.
- Explore emerging technologies and public health implications of eHealth.
- Strengthen epidemiology capacity for Wisconsin communities.
- Receive a free CD-ROM containing state-of-the art tools from the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation's Turning Point Initiative entitled: From Silos to Systems.
